In passing on Section 10,869 of the school laws whose title is "Primary and high schools to be established and sites located," the Louis County Appeals, in Volume 85, page 85, says: Directors have no power to change site of schoolhouses or erect new schoolhouses on new site without the sanction of the voters of the district.

Does this mean that there will have to be an election held to determine the site for the high school building in the Ironton district?

The REGISTER is in receipt of a copy of the Fort Worth, Texas, Record of June 1st, telling of the death of Mrs. H. Peters, which occurred at home of her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Stewart, in that city, May 31st, at the age of 75 years. Mrs. Peters was well known in this county, having at one time conducted the American Hotel in Ironton, and later in the hotel business at Annapolis. She was a good woman and the news of her demise will be heard by many old friends with real sorrow.

A jury in the United States District Court in St. Louis last Friday returned a verdict for $300 in favor of Richard P. Dalton in his suit against the Silgo Furnace Company. Dalton had sued the Silgo Company for $7,500, alleging that the defendant had purchased that amount of timber which had been stolen from a half interest in 310 acres of land which he owned in the west end of Iron County. Dalton lives in Chicago and owns the lands jointly with Marshall John E. Lynch of St. Louis.

In this issue of the REGISTER will be found the announcement of J. W. Reed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Assessor. Mr. Reed is a good man and straightforward Democrat. He has been a resident of Iron County for the last five years, coming here from Reynolds county, where he long made his home. We have no doubt that should he be elected to the office to which he aspires he will, at all times, be found discharging his duties to the very best of his ability.

In this week's issue of the REGISTER will be found the announcement that James G. Austin is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative of Iron County. Mr. Austin needs no words of introduction or commendation from us. He has spent all his life in Iron County and is known by all. He promises that should he be elected to the office to which he aspires he will at all times devote his best ability toward carrying out the will of his constituents.

Judge Dearing and Stenographer Jarvis arrived on the noon train Monday. Circuit court convened in the afternoon. Elliott Sherrill, of Ironton, and Myrtle Chandler, of Bixby, who were indicted by the recent grand jury for violation of the local option law, both pleaded guilty and were sentenced to six months in jail and paroled. Appeals were taken in several cases tried at the recent term of circuit court. All of the business of the adjourned term was completed before Tuesday noon and final adjournment had.

W. W. Strother and L. L. White, who recently with a favor, bought in the College building at Des Arc under a foreclosure sale, this week transferred their interests to the Nazarene church. Messrs. Strother and White were on notes for the school and bought in the property as a protection to themselves. To understand they turned the property back upon being released from the notes and paid for their time. W. H. Wallace of Des Arc was here and handled the deal.—Fredericktown Democrat-News.

Sunday, May 23, I went to Bismarck in response to a special invitation to be present and participate in a birthday dinner that day. Bismarck is a general company, the trip was made on No. 4, which came along strictly on schedule time and transported us to our destination without accident or startling incident. The train was comfortably well filled with human freight—with ladies fair and some not so fair to hide the effects of passing years; with men of various grades and conditions, some, like myself, on pleasure bent, and others with business men, and business, tired of long riding, and evidently anxious for its termination. Yes, the gravity of age and the buoyancy of youth were evident, intermingled in one diversified and incongruous whole. Here a sedate, middle-aged man, who knew where he was going, and who was not a bit afraid of a vigorous and persistent mastication of a wad of "Spearmint," "Yucca," "California Fruit," or kindred ruminating confection.

From whom I knew, whether she used a preferred brand, or whether, in the matter of chewing wax, "all coons look alike" to her—just so it's gum. Anyway, her nether jaw worked with a vigor and persistence amazing to behold. The great attraction of the train was the fact that there were no vicious maddies in the heyday of life and, in one instance, perceptibly enjoying the undetermined mastication of a wad of "Spearmint," "Yucca," "California Fruit," or kindred ruminating confection.

Prof. C. E. Kirchner, a teacher of Vocal and Piano music well known in St. Louis, arrived here Sunday morning, and will probably locate in Ironton permanently.
